ABOUT ME

I'm a teacher by day, and a writer by night. I moved from London last summer, and now live in Cookridge with my wife. I currently teach in a primary school near Knaresborough in a mixed Year Five and Six class, so I have a unique perspective on what inspires and challenges children in their reading. When I'm not teaching, writing or reading, you'll find me in my garden, playing tag rugby or hiking through the magnificent Yorkshire Dales.

WHY DOES RAID OF THE RATSKULL RODENTS DESERVE A PLACE IN YOUR SHOP?

I highly recommend it as an addition to all primary bookshelves (and I'm allergic to cats!)

- Matt O'Grady, Head teacher,
West Horndon Primary School

This is a fun, thrilling and engaging book which all types of readers will enjoy written by a passionate reader of children's fiction. It has characters to cheer for, characters to boo at and characters that will make you laugh-out-loud. It's enjoyable and educational through the footnotes it uses for more complex vocabulary and phrases, but also through its themes of friendship, loyalty and courage. Able seven-year-olds will not be lost in the story, while older readers will still be sucked in by its adventure and mystery. It's simple, yet striking illustrations give readers an insight to the characters and events and its exciting action make it a real page turner.

RESOURCES TO GO WITH RAID OF THE RATSKULL RODENTS

I have bookmarks, stickers, word searches, colouring and more to go along with my book and being a teacher who's used to making resources for young readers, I don't plan on stopping there.

This action-packed story is beautifully told, presenting a delightful, vivid adventure with rich language and imagery.

- Victoria Atkin, Literacy Lead, Bell Lane Primary School, Hendon, London

Raid of the Ratskull Rodents is a rare book that can engage readers of almost any age.

- Peter Anstee, author of 'Differentiation Pocketbook' and 'Independent Learning Pocketbook'
